Company defaults are expected to rise in the current crisis. What are the implications for credit investors?

Check out what Pierre Verlé, Head of Credit and Fund Manager at Carmignac, has to say in this previously unreleased interview with Didier Saint-Georges.

Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results.

Credit markets driven by fear offer greater opportunities – because fear is what creates bond-picking opportunities

KEY TAKEAWAYS

Backdrop

An environment characterised by major concerns over rising default rates, yet with huge amounts of capital allocated to corporate credit as a whole

Implications

A highly segmented market, spanning bonds considered safe investments and thus extremely popular along with less straightforward instruments whose potential is underrated by the market

Our strategy

We thoroughly analyse issuers and estimate their fundamental cost of risk to be able to hunt down attractive opportunities and thereby create value.
